Allan B. I. Bernardo is a psychological scientist and educator who is currently Distinguished University Professor and University Fellow at De La Salle University, Philippines. At De La Salle University, he heads the Psychology of Hope and Well-Being Research Laboratory, and he is Research Faculty affiliated with the Social Development and Research Center (SDRC), Dr. Andrew L. Tan Data Science Institute (ALTDSci), and Southeast Asia Research Center and Hub (SEARCH). He is a Registered Professional Psychologist in the Philippines.

Scientific Research and Publications

His current research focuses on lay theories or cultural ideologies (specifically, polyculturalism) and intergroup/intercultural processes, social psychological dimensions of socioeconomic inequality, poverty, social mobility, social prejudice, and other applied social psychology topics in Asian societies. He also has a research program on hope and well-being and is the proponent of the locus-of-hope theory. His early research program was on the cognitive psychological and sociocultural aspects of achievement motivation, academic learning, teacher development, and education reform in the Philippines.

He has published over 270 articles, book chapters, monographs, edited books. According to GoogleScholar, his works have been cited over 5,900 times and his current h-index = 43, which ranks him among the most cited Filipino scientists in psychology, education, and social sciences. For past three years, he was included in the list of the top 2% of scientists in the world in terms of scientific impact in all scientific disciplines based on a study done in Stanford University and Elsevier Science.

Leadership and Service in the Profession

He has been very active in professional psychology and social science organizations since the early years of his academic career, advocating development of scientific research, capacity building, collaboration across institutions and countries, especially in the Southeast Asian region. In the Philippines, he was very actively involved in the passage of The Philippine Psychology Act of 2009, which regulates the professional practice of psychologists in the country.

He has served as President of the Psychological Association of the Philippines (2004-2008) and Chairman of the Board of the Philippine Social Science Council, Inc. (2008-2012). He was President of the ASEAN Regional Union of Psychological Societies (2008-2010), and President of the Asian Association of Social Psychology (2013-2015). He was also Member of the International Union of Psychological Sciences' Working Committee on the Education of Psychologists (2009-2011).

He is the only Filipino who has served as Editor of two scientific journals listed in the World of Science and Scopus. He was Editor of The Asia-Pacific Education Research (2001-2012) and Editor-in-Chief of Asian Journal of Social Psychology (2018-2020).

Policy and Consulting Work

In the Philippines, he has been involved in policy reforms in education, applying psychological and educational science research for teacher development and curriculum development. He served as consultant for numerous policy reforms and projects of the Department of Education (DepEd), Commission on Higher Education (CHED), and the Department of Science and Technology (DOST), and other private sector educational projects related to student and teacher development. In the CHED, he was Chair of the Technical Panel in Teacher Education (2003-2006), Acting Chair of the Technical Panel in Social Science and Communication (2011), and Chair of the Technical Committee in Psychology (2011-2012).
